Annotated bibliography of print resources on research slide presentations

Chapter 5: Powerful presentations, contains a brief list (p.26-28) of hints on creating and presenting slide presentations. Chapter 7: Conferences and poster presentations has advice on how to attend a conference for maximum advantage.

- As an activity, bring in an old slide presentation of yours, and have students critique the slides, with or without you actually giving the presentation. If you think there isn’t enough to criticize, you can always make detrimental alterations to your presentation in advance.

- Have students bring in slides that they are currently working on, and have classmates provide suggestions for improvement. Best used in a group that you know to be constructive with their feedback.