

Wisconsin MRSEC Educational Video Competition

The Wisconsin MRSEC Educational Video Competition has been launched to promote online science and engineering outreach in the current environment of social distancing where the majority of students are receiving science enrichment at home.

All videos will be hosted on the MRSEC YouTube channel as part of MRSEC's At-Home Science video series (<https://education.mrsec.wisc.edu/at-home-science-activities>).

Types of Videos

Types of videos being sought include at-home activities, interviews, lab tours, introductions of instrumentation, and demonstrations of experiments.

Anyone interested in contributing to the Science at Home series can contact Anne Lynn (agillian@wisc.edu) or Matt (mstilwell@wisc.edu), who will collaborate on the video creation.

Prize

Winners of the award will receive a certificate and some MRSEC swag.

To Enter

Submit a video with a short description including the goals, the audience, and the list of creators to Matt Stilwell at mstilwell@wisc.edu.
